We are extremely grateful to the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation for recognizing the value of the Brooklyn Museum's Archives and its importance to the scholarly community. The Mellon-funded Museum Archives Initiative grant to the Brooklyn Museum has supported the staff and project activities that have culminated in the complete arrangement, description, and preservation of the Wilbour Archival Collection.

The Wilbour finding aid is the result of a combined effort of archivists, librarians, and scholars to organize the Wilbour Archival Collection and make the papers available for researchers. The project involved many different individuals within the Brooklyn Museum as well as outside consultants. Deborah Wythe, former Museum Archivist and Manager of Special Library Collections, surveyed the collection in 2000 prior to its move to the Museum Archives. Deirdre Lawrence was responsible for overseeing the implementation of the entire project; Laura Peimer supervised the project and managed the technological aspects; and Megan Hibbitts processed and described the collection. Keith Duquette, Winona Abraham, and Rachel Danzing completed the project's preservation activities. Consultants Mary Gow, Paul O'Rourke, and Wendy Raver were invaluable in assisting the Project Archivist with identifying and describing materials, reviewing the text of the finding aid, and providing suggestions for publications about Charles Edwin Wilbour.

As a product of the Andrew W. Mellon funded Museum Archives Initiative; this guide will be made available online; along with several other finding aids, to provide greater access to the research collections held in the Brooklyn Museum Libraries and Archives. We hope these tools will benefit researchers for many generations to come.

Chronology of Charles Edwin Wilbour's life

- 1833 March 17. Born in Little Compton, Rhode Island to Charles Wilbour and Sarah Soule.
- 1850 Enrolled at Brown University where he studied Greek, Latin, and French.
- 1852 Left Brown University.
- 1854 Moved to New York City where he was employed as a reporter for The New York Daily Tribune. As a reporter, he developed a personal system of shorthand. This shorthand can be seen throughout his notes and notebooks.
- 1858 Married Charlotte Bidwell Beebe Wilbour. Ms. Wilbour was active in the suffrage movement and a founding member of Sorosis, the first women's club in the United States. Her friends included Susan B. Anthony and Elizabeth Cady Stanton.
- 1859 Admitted to the Bar in the city of New York .
- 1862 Translated Victor Hugo's Les Miserables. This translation is still the definitive English translation of the text.
- 1869 Appointed by William Marcy "Boss" Tweed, political boss of Tammany Hall, to manage the New York Transcript. The newspaper was the official newspaper of the city of New York. In addition to managing the newspaper, Wilbour was a stenographer in the Bureau of Elections, stenographer in the Superior Court, and Examiner of Accounts.¹
- 1870 (ca.) Under Tweed, Wilbour established the New York Printing Press.²
- 1871 As a result of his involvement with Tweed, Wilbour and his family moved to Paris where he began to study Egyptology with Gaston Maspero.
- 1880-1881 First expedition with Maspero to Egypt. For six years, they traveled to Egypt together on a steamer that belonged to the Antiquities Department of Egypt. During his first voyage to Egypt, Wilbour traveled to Alexandria, Cairo, Luxor, Elephantine, Assuan (Aswan), and Philae.

2. "Yesterday's Exploring," Brooklyn Daily Eagle, 22 September 1877, p. 2.

- 1881 Visited the Cow Room, which is found in the tomb of Ramses III. This tomb is found in the Valley of the Kings.
- 1881-1882 Expedition to Egypt. Locations visited included Alexandria, Cairo, Bedreshayn, Minieh, Amarna, Abydos, Edfoo (Edfu), El Kab, Assuan, Elephantine, Philae, Karnak, and Keneh.
- 1882 Returned to the United States to visit his family in Rhode Island. This was his first trip back to the United States since he left in 1871.³
- 1882-1883 Expedition to Egypt. Locations visited included Abu Girgeh, Rodah, Tell-el-Amarna, Siot, Ekhemm, Mensheeyeh-Belianeh, Abydos, Denderah, Coptos, Luxor, Edfoo, Gebel, Silsileh, Assuan, and Philae.
- 1884 Expedition to Egypt. Locations visited included Scuylla, Bedresheyn, Schmoomayn, Mensheeyeh, Assuan, Haseya, Luxor, Karnak, Siot (Siott), and Mudee.
- 1885-1886 Expedition to Egypt. Locations visited included Abookeer (Abu Sir), Alexandria, Bedreshayn, Luxor, Eyoob, Kafr-el-Avat, Assuan (Aswan), Minieh, Thebes, Philae, Siot (Siott), and Cairo.
- 1886 Purchased or leased his dahabiyeh (houseboat) "The Seven Hathors." The boat is named after an Egyptian goddess.
- 1886-1887 Expedition to Egypt. Locations visited included Cairo, Beni Suef, Minieh, Sakkara (Saqqara), Soohag, Luxor, Assuan (Aswan), Erment (Aamant), Essen, Keneh, Bibbeh.
- 1887-1888 Expedition to Egypt. Locations visited included Cairo, Beni Soef (Suet), Magaga, Rodah, Siot, Luxor, Denderah, Philae, Assuan (Aswan), Edfoo (Edfu), Esneh, Erment (Aamant), and Florence.
- 1888-1889 Expedition to Egypt. Locations visited included Cairo, Minieh, El-Kooseeyeh, Menkabad, Dayr Reefa, Raaineh, Bindweed, Soohag, Ekhmeem, Tookh, Assuan (Aswan), Luxor, Elephantine, Philae, Sehayl (Sahel), Shehoor, Keneh, and Malateeyeh.
- 1889 February. Visited and documented the Famine Stela on the Island of Sehayl (Sahel).

3. Wilbour, 100.

- 1889-1890 Expeditions to Egypt. Locations visited included Cairo, Sioot (Siott), Sabariat, Dishneh, Tookh, Karnak, Erment (Aamant), Philae, Sehayl (Sahel), Elephantine, El Kab, Keneh, and Belianeh.
- 1890-1891 Expeditions to Egypt. Locations visited included Cairo, Rikkah, Eshment, Freshn, Roadah, Denderah, Luxor, Elephantine, Philae, Edfoo (Edfu), El Kab, and Taood.
- 1890 Mother, Sarah Soule Wilbour, died in Little Compton, Rhode Island. After her death, Wilbour's letters regarding his travels in Egypt ceased.
- 1893 Documented the Papyrus-Hood Wilbour, which is currently located in the British Museum.
- 1896 December 17. Died in Paris. His death was widely publicized in the United States and abroad. He was originally buried in the Wilbour Cemetery in Little Compton, but was exhumed in 1939 and reburied in Woodlawn Cemetery in New York.

Administrative note

Provenance and history of collection

In 1916, the children of Charles E. Wilbour donated Wilbour's collection of objects, his Egyptological library, and personal papers to the Brooklyn Museum. In 1932, the bequest of Victor Wilbour, the only son of Charles and Charlotte Wilbour, established the Charles Edwin Wilbour Fund. The purpose of this endowment was to financially assist in the purchasing of objects for the Museum's Egyptian collection, support curatorial staff, and establish the Wilbour Library of Egyptology. As a result of the creation of this endowment, the Brooklyn Museum appointed Jean Capart (1877-1947) as Honorary Curator of Egyptology. Capart was one of the first individuals to realize the scholarly value of Wilbour's papers. In 1936, Capart published Travels in Egypt, which contains Wilbour's letters regarding his expeditions. Shortly after the publication of these letters, the Department of Egyptian, Classical, and Ancient Middle Eastern Art (ECAMEA)⁴ employed Walter Federn (1910-1967) "to classify the extensive collection of papers belonging to Charles Edwin Wilbour."⁵ Federn's notes regarding Wilbour's materials can be found throughout the collection and in the Collection Documentation Series, which includes documents about the Wilbour Archival Collection.

In 2000, Deborah Wythe, Museum Archivist, and Laura Peimer, Mellon Project Archivist, surveyed the Wilbour Collection. These papers were transferred to the Museum Archives from the Department of Egyptian, Classical, and Ancient Middle Eastern Art (ECAMEA) in 2005. Many of the documents that belonged to Wilbour are clearly stamped with his name.

Access tools

In addition to this finding aid, a database table has been developed to provide a more detailed access to the collection through folder-level descriptions. The folder description database provides a free-text search capability to brief synopses of folder contents for all materials that are of interest. A printout of the folder descriptions is included in the finding aid.

Processing, arrangement and description

The project archivist observed the following processing guidelines: folded materials were flattened; deteriorating paper and newsprint were photocopied and removed; oversize materials were removed to appropriate containers; photographs were removed and placed in photograph storage. All materials removed were replaced by a separation sheet noting their disposition. The arrangement of materials is noted in the series descriptions. If not noted, the arrangement has not been finalized due to preservation reasons.

4. During the publication of Wilbour's letters, ECAMEA was known as the Department of Ancient Art. The name was changed in 1982.

5. Requisition for Articles of Service: October 11, 1939. Records of the Department of Egyptian, Classical & Ancient Middle Eastern Art: General correspondence. F[02]: Fe-Fo.

Originally, inscriptions, bookplates, maps, and some notes were arranged using a complex organization scheme. Due to preservation and access purposes, these materials have been rearranged. A separation sheet has been placed where material has been removed.

This collection is alphabetically arranged into nine series. At the beginning of this project, the collection was mostly disorganized requiring the creation of a new organizational scheme. Original order of certain series has been maintained in the collection.

Series and subseries titles reflect the imposed scheme; folder titles, whenever possible, transcribe information from the original folder or enclosure. During processing, folder descriptions were created and are intended to provide information on significant correspondents and topics covered.

Original boxes and folders have been retained and are located with their associated documents. Original newspaper clippings and an unidentified box fragment have been removed and are retained in a separate box.

Languages, terminology, and abbreviations

The languages found in the Wilbour Archival Collection: English, French, German, Greek, Spanish, Hieroglyphic, Hieratic, Demonic, and Coptic. The collection also contains material written in Wilbour's shorthand.

The project archivist generally incorporated in folder titles and descriptions Wilbour's own spelling and terminology for place names of regions and locations in Egypt. At times, more current terminology is also used.

The following abbreviations are used in this finding aid:

Scope and content

Wilbour Archival Collection

Dates: 1833-1935 (bulk 1880-1896)

Extent: 4.95 l.f.

The Wilbour Archival Collection documents the research and expeditions of Charles Edwin Wilbour (1833-1896), one of the first American Egyptologists.

This collection includes a wide variety of materials such as articles, letters, inscriptions, notebooks, notes, publications, squeezes, bookplates, maps, and photographs. In addition, the collection contains letters of condolence, clippings, and calling cards related to Wilbour's death, as well as records about this collection.

The bulk of this collection consists of Wilbour's letters, notebooks, and research notes. He wrote numerous detailed letters to his wife, Charlotte Beebe Wilbour, and his mother, Sarah Soule Wilbour, describing both ancient and nineteenth century Egypt. These letters also document some of the objects purchased by Wilbour that are currently found in the Brooklyn Museum. Jean Capart later published these letters in 1936 in his book Travels in Egypt. In addition, there are letters to Wilbour from renowned Egyptologists such as August Eisenlohr, Jan Herman Insigner, Gaston Maspero, A.H. Sayce, Heinrich Karl Brugsch, and W.M. Flinders Petrie regarding their research and publications.

In addition to his letters, Wilbour's research notes and notebooks offer insight into his work and provide detailed accounts of his observations and travels. Unfortunately, some of these notes are written in Wilbour's unique shorthand, which has not yet been fully deciphered.

Additional items of interest are inscriptions that Wilbour copied directly from sites or publications, and copies of published inscriptions with his hand-written annotations. Of particular interest are Wilbour's hand written copies from inscriptions located in the Temple of Ombos, which reflect his meticulousness and attention to detail.

In addition, the squeezes and photographs visually document objects and sites he visited. Of particular interest is a collection of squeezes that provide impressions of inscriptions found on an unidentified sarcophagus. Not only do the photographs provide visual documentation of Wilbour's research, but they also illustrate various monuments in Aswan and other locations.

Location of associated material

The records of the Department of Egyptian, Classical, and Ancient Middle Eastern Art (ECAMEA) in the Brooklyn Museum's Archives contain information regarding the publication of Wilbour's letters, a proposal for a biography regarding Wilbour, and correspondence between members of Wilbour's family and staff at the Brooklyn Museum. Correspondence between Wilbour and the Brooklyn Museum's first curator of fine arts, William Henry Goodyear, can be found in the Goodyear Archival Collection.

The Brooklyn Museum's Wilbour Library of Egyptology contains Wilbour's personal collection of Egyptological literature. This collection also includes publications of inscriptions with his hand-written corrections. Portraits and sketches by Edwin Blashfield, the son in law of Wilbour, are located in the Museum Library and the American Paintings Department of the Brooklyn Museum.

The Newport Historical Society (Newport, R.I.) maintains papers of the Wilbour family. Additional information regarding the Newport Historical Society's collection can be found in the ECAMEA records in the Brooklyn Museum Archives. A microfilm copy of some of these documents located at the Newport Historical Society is in the Brooklyn Museum Library's microfilm collection.

The Little Compton Historical Society (Compton, R.I.) holds a varied collection of Wilbour material, including an oil portrait of Charles Wilbour; correspondence between Wilbour and his mother, Sarah Soule Wilbour; photographs of the Wilbour family; and letters of Charlotte Wilbour that document her involvement with the suffrage movement.

Series descriptions

Series 1: Articles and publications
Dates: 1867-1935, n.d.
Extent: 8 folders (1 inch)
Arrangement: alphabetical

This series is comprised mostly of articles and publications that belonged to or were written by Wilbour. There is also a copy of Edwin L. Taggart's⁶ A Short Guide to the Charles Edwin Wilbour Egyptological Collections, which was published shortly after The Charles Edwin Wilbour Memorial Hall was opened to the public in 1933.

Of particular a note is the article "Obsession." According to Capart, this article was written by Wilbour, but probably never published. The only known article that Wilbour published was "Canalizing the Cataract," which was printed in Recueil de Travaux in 1890.⁷

This series originally contained a copy of Observations de M. Frederic Cailliaud Sur le Voyage de M. Hoskins en Ethipie. This article has been removed from this collection and cataloged in the Brooklyn Museum Library.

Series 2: Collection documentation
Dates 1932-1935; n.d.
Extent: 5 folders (.75 inches)
Arrangement: alphabetical

This series consists of information regarding the content of the Wilbour Archival Collection. Documents include inventories, memoranda, and notes. Also included in this series are notes written by Walter Federn regarding unpublished inscriptions located in Wilbour's notebooks.

Series 3: Inscriptions
Dates: n.d.
Extent: 1 DB, 1 PB (.31 l.f.)

This series contains inscriptions of sites located in Egyptian and European museums. Wilbour, who was well respected for his accurate copying skills, copied most of these inscriptions.⁸ He also had a great passion for correcting inscriptions that were already published by other Egyptologists. Some of these annotated inscriptions are located in this series.

6. Edwin L.M Taggart served as Assistant Curator of Egyptology for ECAMEA from 1932-36.

7. Charles Edwin Wilbour, "Canalizing the Cataract," Recueil de Travaux (1870).

8. John A. Wilson, Signs and Wonders Upon Pharaoh (Chicago: University of Chicago Press Press, 1964), 105.

Of particular note are Wilbour's inscriptions of the Famine Stela, which he discovered in 1889. Included with this inscription is a drawing of Wilbour and the Famine Stela. Edwin Blashfield, an American artist and son in law of Wilbour, may have sketched this drawing.

Series 4: Letters
Dates 1873-1900 (bulk 1880-1896)
Extent: 2 DB (.83 l.f.)
Organization:
 4.1 published
 4.2 Wilbour, Charles
 4.3 Wilbour, Charlotte
 4.4 Wilbour family

This series primarily consists of letters both written to and from Charles Wilbour. These letters document his travels in Egypt, purchases, and his work as an Egyptologist. Letters from Susan B. Anthony to Charlotte Wilbour and one file of correspondence between Benjamin Franklin Wilbour and Brooklyn Museum staff, John Ducey Cooney⁹ and Elizabeth Riefstahl¹⁰, are also included in this series.

Subseries 4.1 published
Dates 1880-1891
Extent: 1 DB (.5 l.f.)
Arrangement: chronological

The letters in this subseries document Wilbour's travels in Egypt from December 1880 to May 1891. According to Capart, these letters were mailed to Charlotte Wilbour and Wilbour's mother, Sarah Soule Wilbour. Included are topics regarding expeditions, Americans traveling in Egypt, conflicts between British-Egyptian forces, the discovery of the Famine Stela, and other Egyptologists including Gaston Maspero and Heinrich Karl Brugsch. Some of the purchases documented in these letters include The Stele of C. Julius Valerius, The Serpent Woman, and The Wilbour Plaque. Sketches of objects are also found in these letters. These letters contain very little personal information regarding Wilbour and his family.

In 1936, Capart published Travels in Egypt,¹¹ which included all of these letters. In correspondence located in the records of ECAMEA, Capart and other individuals often refer these published letters as Wilbour's diaries. This subseries was originally found in three portfolios and arranged in

9. John Ducey Cooney (1905-1982) served as Curator of Egyptology from 1938-46.

10. Elizabeth Riefstahl (1889-1986) served as Librarian for the Wilbour Library of Egyptology from 1937-56.

11. Charles Edwin Wilbour, Travels in Egypt: Letters of Charles Edwin Wilbour (Brooklyn: Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences, 1936).

chronological order. For access purposes, the order has been changed to reflect the organizational scheme found in Travels in Egypt.

Subseries 4.2: Wilbour, Charles
Dates: 1873-1896
Extent: 1 DB (.41 l.f.)
Arrangement: alphabetical

This subseries contains letters written to Wilbour mostly by Egyptologists, including Henrich Brugsch, August Eisenlohr, Jan Herman Insinger, Gaston Maspero, Perry Newberry, William Matthew Flinders Petrie, and Archibald Henry Sayce. Topics included in these letters are observations of sites, inscriptions, publications, Egyptian grammar, and the Antiquities Councils. Of particular interest is a letter from Brugsch regarding the discovery of the Famine Stela.

These letters were organized chronologically by Capart. However, for access purposes, these letters have been rearranged in alphabetical order by the sender's last name.

Subseries 4.3 Wilbour, Charlotte
Dates: 1899-1900
Extent: 1 file folder (.25 inches)

This series consists of letters written by Susan B. Anthony to Charlotte Wilbour. These letters document the role Charlotte Wilbour played in the suffrage movement in the United States.

Subseries 4.4 Wilbour family
Dates: 1939-1947
Extent: 1 file folder (.25 inches)

Correspondence between members of the Wilbour family and the staff of the Brooklyn Museum are included in this subseries. Topics included are the Little Compton Historical Society and a portrait of Isaac Wilbour. Additional correspondence from the Wilbour Family is located in the records of the Department of Egyptian, Classical, and Ancient Middle Eastern Art (ECAMEA).

Series 5: Notebooks
Dates: 1880-1895; n.d
Extent: 2 SB (1.75 l.f.)
Arrangement: chronologically and alphabetically (Wilbour's labeling system)

There are two different types of notebooks found in this series. Notebooks 2A-3C mostly document Wilbour's travels in Egypt. These notebooks contain inscriptions, hieroglyphs, maps of tombs, sketches of objects purchased, itineraries of travels, and lists of expenses. Most of the details regarding his travels are written in shorthand. Included with these notebooks are sketches of objects purchased by Wilbour, which include The Gnostic Gem and the Head of Faun. At a later date, accession numbers for objects located at the Brooklyn Museum were added next to certain sketches.

Notebooks 3D-49 include notes and indexes to Egyptological publications. Also included with these notebooks are sketches of objects located at Belgian museums.

These notebooks are organized using Wilbour's original labeling system. In this organizational scheme, the notebooks are arranged first chronologically and then alphabetically. Loose notes found between notebooks 2K and 2Q are also included in this series.

Series 6: Notes
Dates: n.d.
Extent: 1 PB, .1 DB, 1 SB (.90 l.f)
Organization:
 6.1 general
 6.2 geographical dictionary
 6.3 publications
 6.4 shorthand

This series includes Wilbour's notes regarding hieroglyphs, publications, indexes, and financial information. Notes regarding objects and locations for his geographical dictionary are included in this series.

These materials are organized into four subseries.

Subseries 6.1: general
Dates: n.d.
Extent: 1 PB, 1 DB (.18 l.f.)

This series consists of notes regarding hieroglyphs, Cleopatra's needle, The Book of the Dead, inscriptions, publications, Georg Ebers, a Goddess of Dendur, and Tell-el-timai. This series also contains images of tombs, birds, an American flag, and an offering table.

Letters from C.D. Angel and H.M Caldwell were originally found with these notes. These letters have been relocated to Charles Wilbour's Letters (Series 4.3).

Subseries 6.2: geographical dictionary
Dates: n.d.
Extent: 1 SB (.58 l.f.)
Arrangement: chronologically by box number

The notes contained in this subseries were originally located in boxes labeled "Archeologie Egyptienne." According to Paul O'Rourke, Wilbour wrote these notes for his geographical dictionary. Notes in this subseries include information regarding sites and objects located in ancient Egypt and Europe.

Subseries 6.3: publications
Dates: n.d.
Extent: 1 PB (.10 l.f)

This subseries includes Wilbour's notes about and transcriptions of various Egyptological publications. Publications include Heinrich Brugsch's Dictionnaire;¹² Johannes Duemichen's Altagyptische Tempelinschriften;¹³ and Richard Lepsius' Denkmaler.¹⁴

Subseries 6.4: shorthand
Dates n.d.
Extent: 1 DB (.25 inches)

Notes and memorandum regarding Wilbour's shorthand are located in this subseries. This shorthand, which has yet to be deciphered, is believed to be a combination of Demonic and a shorthand system developed by George R. Bishop.

George R. Bishop's Exact Phonography: A System with Connectible Stroke Vowel Signs was originally located in this subseries. However, this publication has been transferred to the Wilbour Library of Egyptology.

Series 7: Posthumous
Dates: 1896
Extent: .5 DB (.15 l.f.)
Arrangement: alphabetical

This series contains papers regarding Wilbour's death. Included in this series are calling cards, letters of condolence to Charlotte Wilbour, and obituaries from the New York Daily Tribune and other newspapers.

12. Heinrich Karl Brugsch, Dictionnaire Geographique de l'ancienne Egypte (Leipzig: J.C. Hinrichs, 1879).

13. Johannes Duemichen, Altagyptische Tempelinschriften in den Jahren 1863-1865 an Ort und Stelle gesammelt (Leipzig: J.C. Hinrichs, 1867).

14. Richard Lepsius, Denkmaler (Berlin: Nicolai, 1849).

Series 8: Squeezes
Dates: 1891; n.d.
Extent: 3 PB (.38 1.f.)

Squeezes are paper impressions that were used by Egyptologists to study ancient Egyptian hieroglyphics and reliefs. The process involved putting wet paper pulp on the object or inscription. After the paper pulp dried, the squeeze was removed and, as a result, an impression was created.

This series contains squeezes of various inscriptions and objects. Of particular note are ten squeezes from the Temple of Luxor's Divine Nuptial scene and an impression of the Famine Stela. Many of the squeezes contain impressions of unidentified inscriptions from monuments.

Series 9: Visual materials
Dates: 1875; n.d.
Extent: 2PB, 1 SB, .5 DB (.77 l.f)

Organization:

- 9.1 bookplates
- 9.2 maps
- 9.3 photographs
- 9.4 paintings

This series contains all visual materials that belonged to Wilbour, which include bookplates, maps, photographs, and one painting. The bulk of this series are photographs, which provide visual documentation to many sites in ancient Egypt that may no longer exist.

These materials are divided into four subseries

Subseries 9.1: bookplates
Dates: n.d.
Extent: 1 PB (1 inch)

This subseries includes bookplates from Egyptological publications. Of particular note is a bookplate of an Egyptian calendar, which is annotated by Wilbour. Additional bookplates include images of Egyptian tools, Greek inscriptions, the Papyrus Harris, the Sphinx, a Temple of Hathor, and el-Hibis Temple.

Subseries 9.2: maps
Dates: n.d.
Extent: 1 PB (.25 inches)

Included in this subseries are Maps of Nubia, Valley of the Kings, and Abookeer (Abusir).

Subseries 9.3 painting
Dates: 1875
Extent 1 file folder

This series contains a painting of a boy with a camel by an unknown artist in 1875.

Subseries 9.4 photographs
Dates: n.d.
Extent: 1 SB, .5 DB (.67 l.f)
Arrangement: alphabetical

Mounted photographs make up the bulk of the subseries. These photographs include images of objects and sites. Of particular note is an image of The Seven Hathors, Wilbour's dahabiyeh (houseboat). Announcements of the discovery of the Famine Stela are also located in this series. These announcements contain an image of the Famine Stela photographed by Alfred Maudslay, an archaeologist and photographer. Most of these mounted photographs contain caption notes by Walter Federn that contain cross-references to publications, such as Bertha Porter's and Rosaline Moss' The Topographical Bibliography of Ancient Egyptian Hieroglyphic Texts, Reliefs, and Paintings. Many of these images are faded and are in poor condition.

Additional photographs of expedition parties, hieroglyphs, inscriptions, and Wilbour's shorthand are also located in this subseries.
