God Flanked by Two Crocodiles

Late Period, Dynasty 26, or later
Egypt

This rare ancient Egyptian illustration depicts two crocodiles protecting what's most likely a figure of a king. The linen amulet would cover a mummy during wrapping in hopes that such protection would transfer to the owner in the afterlife. See the original work in our open collection online.